New Year.

The New Year has come with the usual amount of greetings, of wishes and bless-Bistriet of Kehala-Court-house, Waimea, and ings. All the changes, variations and medleys have been rung on that theme since New Year was first observed, and yet the world, like a consummate actor, receives the offerings with a smile and a wine and the cake, for what they are worth-and what are they worth?

In a small house, scantily furnished and badly lighted, sits a widow, with three or District of Hana - Court-bouse, Hana; School-house, Keanse; School-house, Mokulau, Kaupo. to whom her young heart had clung, like the ivy to the oak, through adversity and trials; but the passing year singled him out to bear her train in the realms of the shadowy past, and, selfish and cruel, she left the widow and the orphan with aching | ple together before in this country, where hearts and smothered sighs to the neighbors' well-meant but ill-timed "Happy New Year!" What to them is it worth?

Music sounds on the still night air. The cannon roar to the incoming year, and revelry reigns within and without; blazing with light and furnished with luxury, stands the wide-open hall of the merchant prince, and the blandest of smiles and the deepest of bows accompany the greetings of the owner of this elysinm on earth; His Excellency the Minister Resident of but the owner who receives and returns the United States and an andience of His | this fearful infliction, received a telegram Majesty for the purpose of presenting as the year passed away that his ships Rear Admiral John A. The fact is, the verandas are so spacious that many of the guests on this occasion did not notice that there were two bands of eighteen pieces each, playing alternately on the mauka side.

When supper was announced no one was jostled for want of room, and all the numerous guests were able to be seated and those who were not told of it could hear no sound below, so complete is the
